It has been suggested by one of our citizens that the camel to be used on our Carnival float should be covered with some durable material and placed on top of the Water Company's tank after the Carnival so as to attract the attention of strangers passing through this part of the country and thus advertise the town.

Notice of Annual Meeting of Stockholders.

Notice is hereby given that the Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of Campbell Fruit Growers' Union, a corporation, will be held at its place of business in Campbell, California, on Wednesday, May 13, 1896, at 10 o'clock A. M., for the following purposes: First, to receive the report of the Officers: Second, to elect a Board of Directors; Third, to make such changes or amendments in the By-Laws as may be deemed wise; Fourth, to transact any and all other business that may properly come before that meeting.

F. M. RIGHTER, President.
S. G. RODECK, Secretary.
Campbell, Cal., April 21, 1896.

Hotel Men Visit Campbell.

A number of conveyances were provided by our citizens to show the hotel men visiting San Jose last week around the valley and these citizens with a large number of other wise escorts, brought their passengers out where the finest fruit country in the world is to be seen, i. e. to Campbell and vicinity. A number of them were taken through the drier where an opportunity was given them to inspect one of the world's largest drying plants. These hotel keepers will, in all probability see that the Campbell brand of fruit is used on their tables hereafter.

For bargains in real estate apply to, or address Ira J. Campbell Campbell, Cal.

For storage of any discriptions apply to Campbell Fruit Growers Union. Fire proof warehouse. Terms reasonable.

Streets to Be Cleared.

The plan of the managing committee of the Rose Carnival is to have the streets of San Jose cleared of vehicles during the grand parade of the opening day. While this plan is a very wise one some other arrangement should be devised by which the great gathering of people can have an opportunity of viewing the floats as they pass. It is generally only a very small per cent of the people who really get a good view when a parade passes along the street as those in front obstruct the view of the less fortunate who occupy more distant positions. The visitors from the country or outside towns naturally fare the worst as the home people get all the desirable positions in upstair windows and balconies and leave the strangers to take the "back seats." The country people have many of them heretofore resorted to driving their conveyances into the streets simply because this is the only way they can get in a position to see any thing. San Jose should have the generosity shown by Santa Barbara and other towns on similar occasions in providing raised seats on the amphitheatre along the principal streets for the benefit of the spectators.

People's Party Club.

On last Saturday evening a meeting of the People's Party Club of Campbell was held at Y. M. C. A. Hall with a good attendance. The meeting was called to order by S. A. Moulton acting as temporary chairman. C. W. Davison was elected president of the club and C. H. Whitman secretary. Delegates to the county convention in session today in San Jose were chosen as follows: S. A. Moulton, W. W. Turney, alternates, C. H. Whitman, E. M. White. After a discussion of the silver question and other subjects of common interest to the members of the club the meeting adjourned. The club will meet hereafter regularly on the last Friday in each month.

SOCIAL EVENTS.

A Happy Occasion.

The beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Turney was the scene of joyous festivities on Monday last the 27th inst. the occasion being the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding day. Quite a number of guests were present. The outside was gaily lit with Japanese lanterns and the inside was a perfect bower of beauty. Flowers were everywhere entwined and festooned and set as buoquets with most exquisite taste. A beautiful floral bell gracefully hung from the chandelier in the dining-room. In a most charming manner did host and hostess entertain their numerous guests, and the refreshments served were most elegant and delicious. During the evening the Campbell band gave a serenade which was greatly enjoyed by all. Before breaking up the company engaged in singing "Auld Lang Syne" and "Home Sweet Home, "which was done with great heartiness. Mrs. Pinney leading on the piano. With congratulations and ardent wishes for a long future of joy to their hosts, the company wended homeward having spent one of the pleasantest evenings of their lives. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Turney, Royal P. Turney, Mrs. Milton E. Pinney, Mr. E. Janes and wife, A. G. Williams and wife, H. A. Tibbetts and wife, Rev. Wm. Windsor and wife, B. Campbell and wife, Judge and Mrs. Hurlburt, E. N. Parr and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Moulton, Mr. and Mrs. Merrill, Mr. and Mrs. Wade, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Angwin, Mr. and Mrs. Rodeck, Mr. and Mrs. Righter Senator and Mrs. Conklin, Mr. and Mrs. Coates, Dr. and Mrs. Cooper, Mr. Swope, Colonel and Mrs. Cooper, Mrs. Reinig, Fred Reinig, Miss Alda Swope, Miss Janes and Miss Bertha Janes.

Rose Carnival Entertainment.

The entertainment for the benefit of the Rose Carnival fund held at Y. M. C. A. Hall last Friday evening drew a crowded house and the amount realized from the admission fees and sale of refreshments will help quite materially toward the expense of the Campbell float and booth. The program given was as follows: Piano—Impromptu, Op. 59 (Thome,) Miss Ada Ross; Vocal "There's a Merry Brown Thrush," Miss Cora Gates; Piano—Rhapsody, Miss Alice Engle; Recitation—"The Twilight Idyl," Miss Myrtle Gellat; Piano—Alpine Glow, Op. 193 (Osten,) Miss Ada Ross; Vocal—"Spanish Ballads" Miss Mildred Spencer; Recitation—"Old Ace," Miss Myrtle Gellat; Guitar Solo—Selected, Miss Elsie Tooker.

The different parts on the program were of a very high order all them deserving special mention for their excellency. The young ladies who took part in the entertainment, coming as they did through the storm to help the town in raising necessary funds for the Rose Carnival expenses deserve the thanks of the entire community for the assistance given.

W. F. M. Society.

The monthly meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. Church was held last Sunday morning at the hour of the usual preaching service, from 11 to 12 o'clock. The program given was of unusual interest. The subject of the meeting was "The Social Condition of Women in Africa." A number of interesting papers were read on the subject by different members of the society. The music for the occasion was prepared by Mrs. S. A. Foote and a quartette composed of Mr. and Mrs. Waddell, Mrs. Whitney and Mr. E. W. Conant. Several beautiful anthems, solos etc., were among the selections given. The next meeting of the society will be held the last Sunday in May.

THE VISITOR AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM.

That the VISITOR has great value as an advertising medium will not be questioned by those who know the class of people among whom it circulates. The citizens of Campbell and the country tributary thereto are very widely known as the most prosperous and enterprising people of the banner county of the State. They are a thrifty people, not given to extravagance, but as a rule able to buy and pay for what they need. The merchants who secure their trade get their best cusomers. The VISITOR, being the only local paper, is by far the best means of reaching and securing their trade and no where will your advertising bring you better returns for the money invested. Write for rates to the CAMPBELL WEEKLY VISITOR, Campbell, Cal.

May flowers are blooming.

THE Campbell float will be seen in the parade. The camel will be there with "four feet."

THE citizens are still talking fire apparatus and we hope to hear of a great deal of action in the way of securing equipment out of it all.

IT is well that the Santa Clara County Rose Carnival is well down on the list of floral events in the State. Had she headed the list the others would have been discouraged. —S. F. News.

The recent cold weather and heavy frosts which resulted in so much damage to fruit through the valley affected orchards in the immediate vicinity of Campbell so little that our orchardists are well satisfied that we are in a warm belt. This is probably due to the fact that we are on a ridge which is somewhat higher than the surrounding country. Though the ordinary observer would hardly notice this fact it can readily be seen by a little thought on the matter. The drainage from the east side of town runs into the Los Gatos creek while that from the west helps to swell the waters of the San Tomas. Though the land on which the town is built may seem to be so little above that of the country around it a great many advantages result trom it. In addition to being an advantage in case of heavy frosts it no doubt results in giving us a healthier atmosphere and thus makes this a most desirable residence section.

NON-PARTIZAN VIEWS.

[By E. Janes.]

INTERNATIONAL ARBITRATION.

Compulsory arbitration is a contradiction in terms. For, as soon as arbitration becomes compulsory, it is, in all essential respects, an ordinary process of law. All our civil courts are only machinery for settling disputes and enforcing the settlement. If two men have a dispute about some matter of business, the ordinary course is that one of them applies to a court of law to decide which of them is right and enforce the decision. And the court investigates the matter, according to rules of evidence which the experience of ages has shown to be necessary. After due deliberation a conclusion is reached, which is then enforced by the whole power of the government.

But, now, suppose these two men agree to call in three neighbors to settle their dispute. If the one who gets a decision against him be a sincere and honest man, he accepts the verdict loyally, and no force is needed. But suppose he rejects the decision and refuses to submit to it. Then the arbitration is a failure, and the civil courts must be resorted to after all. Or, if the parties have entered into a legal contract beforehand that they will accept the results of the arbitration, then the ordinary courts must be called on to enforce this contract.

If the law makes regular provision for committees of arbitration, it must also make provision for enforcing their decisions. And such a process differs from an ordinary law process only in being a cheaper and simpler and less thorough legal process. There are many such courts in Europe, in which petty disputes between merchants are settled by a committee of merchants, and the decisions have the force of law. But arbitration is a voluntary affair, a process set in motion and submitted to by the free-will of the parties concerned.

Now, how far can these principles be applied to disputes between nations? Obviously the difference is very great between a nation and an individual man. When the government of a nation expresses a willingness to submit a question to arbitration, to "leave it out to the neighbors," the very act implies an admission that it may very probably be in the wrong, or else that the matter in dispute is too trifling for serious conflict. But a nation hardly ever feels itself in the wrong, though it may often feel itself too weak to maintain its rights, or may hope to gain some indirect advantage by making concessions. Now, suppose two nations to enter into a treaty beforehand that they will accept the decision of a certain arbitrator in a certain matter, and suppose the decision is not such as the defeated one had made up its mind to beforehand, but seems to it unjust. In such a case, only a weaker nation would submit.

No powerful nation has ever kept a treaty any longer than, on the whole, her interests seemed to lie in so doing. Treaties have always been brittle ware, and it is hard to find any indications of improvement in more recent history. The greatest case of arbitration on record, the one constantly quoted by writers on the subject, is the Alabama case, between England and the United States. But it is quite obvious that in agreeing to arbitration England simply admitted that she had made a serious mistake and was willing to pay for it. The ceremony of forming a court and submitting evidence was merely a device to save her dignity and pride, and to fix the amount of the damages. If unreasonable damages had been awarded, England would never have paid them. If no damages had been awarded, the United States would never have accepted the verdict.

But it has been proposed by some visionaries that a court be organized, composed of all the most advanced nations, to decide international questions and enforce the decisions. This would not be arbitration in any proper meaning of the word. It would be only a court, formed by treaties between nations, and these treaties would be no more sacred than others have been. Their observance would depend upon interest.

To suppose that seven or eight civilized nations are going to make joint war upon one nation, in order to enforce such decrees, is mere trifling. The outcome of such an attempt would inevitably be a deadly struggle with three or four nations on each side. And this, after all, would differ but little in principle from the great Napoleonic wars, which are now regarded with such horror.

Arbitration between nations has been very useful on several occasions, and will undoubtedly be valuable in the future. But we should not expect too much from it.

"National Honor" is still too sensitive, national hatreds are still too deep-seated, the hunger for territory is still too strong, the greed of commercial and industrial profit is still too powerful, the love of "glory" is still too active,—to be controlled by a system which is in its essence voluntary.

If we desire peace we should seek to restrain hatred and bitterness and bragging and threatening, rather than indulge in these things and then rely upon arbitration to get us out of the scrape.

When Old Friends Meet.

From their conversation they must have been old college chums who had not met for a long time until they ran against each other in a Madison avenue car last evening.

The bigger one was accompanied by a pale, delicate man who bore a much scared expression, while the other ex-collegian, one of those fellows with a stentorian voice, was alone.

They shook hands effusively and then began an exchange of reminiscences, in which such fragments as, "Don't you remember the '87 game at Princeton?" and "What's become of Jack So-and-so?" were distinguishable all over the car.

Then the one with the voice became more personal in his remarks:

"Do you remember, old man, how you always intended to be a doctor? Ha, ha, you don't look much as though you took your own medicine, I can tell you. 'Faithful unto death,' no doubt, is your motto. Ha, ha! I'll bet you enjoy cutting off legs and arms and taking out old 'insides' and putting in new ones. I say, haven't you killed off more than you've saved?"

The pale, scared man was sinking rapidly into a faint. The big man braced him up, and turning to the one with the fog horn voice said:

"For heaven's sake be quiet! I'm a professor at the Johns Hopkins hospital, and this is a patient I'm taking there for an operation."

The fog horn voice and its owner nearly got killed trying to get off before the car arrived at the corner.—Baltimore Telegram.

His Umbrella.

A young man was riding down town the other evening in a Euclid avenue car. He took the front seat and held in his hand an umbrella which had been given him as a birthday present. On the seat facing him was a lady with a precocious infant boy, evidently about 5 years old. The youngster regarded the young man with rapt attention for a few moments, and then his eyes wandered to the umbrella. He gazed at it in silence for a second; then he wriggled in his seat, clapped his hands and shouted:

"Oh, mamma, doesn't that look like papa's umbrella?"

"Hush! hush! my child," said the mother, patting the prodigy on the head.

"Papa was looking for his umbrella this evening, wasn't he, mamma?" continued the child wonder.

"Yes, yes, but he found it," said the mother hurriedly as the conversation was becoming of exceeding interest to the occupants of two rows of seats.

"Why, mamma," continued the youngster, "you know he didn't. Why, you told him that he didn't know enough to keep an umbrella. Why, mamma"—

At this stage the young man got up and left the car.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Handy Man.

People always seem to be more or less interested in seeing men at work on new buildings. On a building under construction up town there was a man up on the fourth or fifth story who was hoisting water from the ground. He had a beam rigged out, with a fall at the end of it, and a bucket attached to the fall. There was a barrel on the ground below, and when he wanted water he lowered the bucket down to the barrel, dipped it himself from above and hoisted away. He didn't want any help; all he asked was to have the barrel kept full, and he would do the rest.—New York Sun.

ACME CYCLE COMPANY, ELKHART, IND.

Ft. Worth, Texas, Oct. 10, 1895.
Acme Cycle Co., Elkhart Ind.

Dear Sirs:—My Acme Light Roadster arrived yesterday morning and not only myself, but everyone that has seen it pronounces it a strictly first-class wheel and a beauty. I am very well pleased with the same, and will do all I can to get a great many more to buy your wheel.

Yours truly,
C. H. CHEATHAM.

Acme Cycle Co., Elkhart, Ind.

Dears Sirs:—Having given my wheel a good trial, am ready to say I am exceedingly well pleased and thank you very kindly for the favor and privilege you have given me. I showed the wheel to one of our prominent bicycle agents, who did his best to sell me a wheel, and he said after taking a short ride on it that it was a fine wheel; and I know if the material is as good as the finish, I will never regret my bargain.

Yours truly
SEHT BARTON.

Novel Headache Cure.

The latest "cure" suggested for the relief of headaches is a hair cut. A certain physician in London has met with great success lately in his treatment of persistent cases of "nervous" headaches, and he has disclosed the secret.

In each case, he says, after the patient had laid bare a long tale of woe—of sleepless nights and miserable days—he prescribed briefly a simple hair cut. It is not necessary that the hair should be cropped off short, after the fashion of convicts.

The curative property of the treatment is based on the fact that the tube which is contained in each single hair is severed in the process, and the brain "bleeds," as the barbers say, thereby opening a safety valve for the congested cranium. A commentator in the London society press in referring to this cure says:

"Try the cure when next attacked by headache, and if the result be not satisfactory rest assured that it is not the fault of the prescription, but that the head is so wooden that it wooden't act."

The Mountaineer's Bear Team.

"I was driving along a road in the mountains of western North Carolina a short time ago," said P. B. Mayfield of St. Louis, "when I heard a wagon coming around a bend in the road. My horses shied, then began to tremble, being evidently in the most abject terror. I could not make them move a foot, and when the approaching team came into sight I saw the reason, and, getting out of the buggy, succeeded in quieting my horses, so as to allow the strange team room to pass, the driver of the brutes ahead of me calling: 'They won't hurt nothin, stranger. Don't be skeared.' He was driving a team of full grown black bears, and they were making about as fast time as a yoke of oxen would. They were hitched to a wagon loaded with logs. The upper part of the wagon was like any other, but the wheels were small and heavy, evidently the work of a local blacksmith. The bears paid no attention to me or to my team and walked along leisurely, drawing their load seemingly without effort."—Washington Star.

A Story of the Prince.

In England the following is regarded as "a good story about the Prince of Wales," and perhaps as not reflecting upon the newspaper man: "His royal highness has often gone to see big fires. Once after the opera he strolled unattended toward a spot where the red glow in the sky had indicated a great conflagration. Seeing a newspaper reporter taking notes, the prince asked him for details, which were of course readily given, especially as the identity of the questioner was known to the journalist. At the conclusion of the conversation the prince offered the reporter a cigar, which the latter carefully wrapped in an envelope and placed in his pocket. 'Why don't you smoke it?' said the prince. 'Because I'm not likely ever to get another cigar from the Prince of Wales, so I mean to keep this one as a memento.' The prince laughed good naturedly, and bringing out his case again replied, 'Well, you had better have another one—this time to smoke.'"

The four podded lotus, in an exposed situation, makes a cover for its flower by drawing one or more of the leaves over the blossom and keeping them there during the heat of the day.

Rags for paper making are boiled under steam pressure. A hundred pounds of rags are mixed with from 6 to 12 pounds of carbonate of soda and half as much quicklime.

Lord Leighton and Children.

Even under the social storm and stress of "Studio Sunday," when his picturesque house was crowded with an exacting and brilliant throng, Leighton could make time to minister to the wants of any little visitors who might accompany their elders. One charming instance of this comes to my mind in reference to a reception at his house some seven or eight years ago. A pretty little girl was trying to edge her wee person through the crowd to get a glimpse of the president's pictures, but without success. In an instant he grasped the situation, raised her to his shoulder, and the two were chatting gleefully together as if they had been friends for life.

An example of his generous and patient self restraint I saw on another occasion, when the accident of his high official position brought him into unwilling touch with a wealthy parvenu. This magnate knew little of art, but prided himself on his choice collection, which only a moderate share of critical knowledge might have seriously discounted. Over the dining room mantelpiece was a very doubtful old master, over which its master waxed enthusiastic in the presence of his guest, praising its alleged points of merit in no measured terms and generally explaining the why and the wherefore with the fluency of self complacent ignorance. The president listened with the suspicion of a smile on his handsome features. But his few words were wise generalities, and, as soon as courtesy would permit, a tactful silence prompted by those rare diplomatic powers with which he was so richly gifted.—London Times.

The Story of a Hatfield Picture.

On the grand staircase of Hatfield House is a portrait of the fourth earl of Salisbury to which a curious story attaches. A casual glance at the picture gives one the impression of a man with two heads—behind the features of the earl peers another face in much fainter outline and of quite a distinct type—the face, in fat, of the unfortunate Duke of Monmouth. It seems that the duke, when a favorite at court, was a friend of the then Earl of Salisbury, and as a mark of his esteem presented the earl with his portrait. After Sedgemoor, however, it was not safe for the earl to keep the picture on his walls, and it was accordingly hidden away in the lumber room. Years after the discarded canvas, from which the features of the rebel duke had entirely disappeared, was found by the fourth earl of Salisbury at a time when he was about to have his own portrait painted, and in a spirit of economy he resolved to utilize it for this purpose. When this portrait came to be cleaned some years ago, the face of Monmouth reappeared, to the confusion of the person engaged in the task. This, at any rate, is the explanation of the mystery which Lord Salisbury himself has accepted, if only for the want of a better.—Cassell's Magazine.

Raising Funds.

"I'll give $10," announced the man in the third pew from the front.

The converted counterfeiter rose with emotion.

"And I," he exclaimed, "will make it $100."—Detroit Tribune.

No Discrimination.

Miss Lucy (to her cook)—Really, Aunt Chloe, it is dreadful of old Ned to bring up his children so badly. He lets them steal right and left.

Aunt Chloe—Yes, Miss Lucy, dat's what I always say. Folks does very wrong to let dey chillen steal, 'cause chillen, dey ain't got no judgment. Dey don't know what to steal.—New York Journal.
